His Lordship—And that this particular contract was a step in that concealment? Mr Francis—Yes, that the concealment is simply of motive. The Acting Attorney General -- Very well will take my learned friend's view of it. What he says is this that the plaintiff with this knowledge, together with others, including one of the partners of the firm, entered into this contract with the defendant, having confederated together to take advantage of their special knowledge to buy up all the shares at current prices, to hold them, and thus preste a fictitions price with the object of defrauding and cheating the ignorant and unwary public of which this gentlemen a broker and goneral dealer in shares is one. Now I shall put the plaintiff in the witness-box and he will tell you and you will be able to judge whether he is confederacy, and knew nothing about it whatever: that neither at that date nor at any subsequent date was he a party in any way in any confederacy, any corner of any description. You will be able to judge from the plaintiff's evidence the truth of this case. I trust you will have an opportunity of judging from the defendant, and challenge my friend to put him into the witness-box and subject him to crossexamination. Now the case at issue is this, that by reason of the operations of certain members of the firm of Mesers unable-perhaps I ought to say to put it plaintiff he (the plaintiff) rendered it im-

This, I take to mean that the plaintiff bought up all the charen in the market so that the defendant could not obtain any to meet his liabilities. Well, gentlemen, I think I have described to you what is a somewhat peculiar and strange case. Here is a man who is a general share dealer by his own confessionor rather as it is put, a broker and general dealer in shares—who goes to the marketbuys on the market and sells in the market what he has not got, thinking of course that the chances are that he will be able to dorive some advantage from the transaction and who when the chances go against him says 'I can't perform my contract. I don't intend to detain you longer, gentlemen; you will be able to judge for yourselves what are the real facts of this case and I think you will have no difficulty in coming to the conclusion that this defence which is raised as regards alleged fraud and concealment is a deliberate fabrication in order to enable the defendant, if he can, to evade his lawful liabilities. Mr Pollock read the pleadings which are 1. The plaintiff is an innderwriter and 2. The defendant is a share jobber and

This occurred on one or two occasions, and goes to prove the excited state of mind in which the combatants were Although these fearful crimes were being committed, it must be said that the conflict was confined to the members of the two societies. Several Europeans were in the vicinity, but at present we have heard of no assault upon any one. The battle continued all that day. During the evening it got wind that the coolies intended firing Messrs Windsor Rose & Co's mill. The manager's call for assistance brought forward the Chief Engineer of the Hecate, and some of the Engineers and Officers from the two Red Funnel boats lying in the harbour, so that altogether a team of thirteen Europeans mustered at the mill, while seven guarded the godown. Those who had not firearms of their own were provided with them by the Engineer of the mill. The Hecate was lying alongside the wharf near the mill where the fighting was going on, the Captain and Officers were rather alarmed lest the mob should rush and attempt to set fire to the ship. Steam was got up in the boilers, a hose was attached to the donkey pump, a strict watch kept. every precaution was taken in of emergency. The coolies made one or two attempts to get at the mill. Once they sent a bundle of burning substance dangerously close, but the stuff was soon extinguished. In the rush to get away, about fifteen men were unhorsed. but those who stuck on, with their long swords created a sheel among the belligerents, and in less than three minutes from the time the order to charge was given, not a single Chinaman could be seen. The troops were then drawn up in line along the road in such a way as to surround the entire buildings, and so as to prevent the escape of the coolies. Several attempted to break through the ranks, but failing to stop when called upon to do so, they were bayonetted without mercy. In the meantime a large number of steam launches were patrolling the river, so that every possible chance of escape was shut off to the coolies. Having got so much order restored, the troops stationed on the wharf where the Hecate was lying were ordered to search the cargo boats lying round that vessel. The soldiers had no sooner stepped off the wharf and lined along into the boats when there was a mighty horde of bewildered coolies rushing hither and thither, to the boats, into the water, on

On Wednesday evening a serious conflict obtained on application. near Messrs. Windsor Rose and Com- and placed in a condition to cope with these La er News.

Yesterday morning a squadron of Cavalry under Captain Castenskield, a detachment of Infantry under Captain Schow, and last but not least, the marines under Commo and wounded, but it must be said that the unnecessary blood-shed took place. About six hundred Chinese were captured at the pairs with their pigtails which came in very handy for the purpose. About 400 guns, revolvers and apears were seized. Numbers of the rioters were caught in the water tanks of the s. s. Hecate, in her coal bunkers, and in the funnel, and some were eaught bundled up in small baskets and among pigs' fodder with only the mouth and nose above the surface.

Mr E. B. Gould, the | British Charge d'Affaires, accompanied by Mr French, the British Legation, was on the scene of action and gave permission where the houses of British subjects had to be searched. Owing to some requests addressed to the German Legation baving been written in Siamese, some delay occurred before searching Messrs A. Markwald & Co.'s Mill. It is to be hoped that now the Siamese have shown themselves to be masters in their own country. they will keep the upper hand of the Chinese and not permit anything of the kind to occur again. The riots will cause heavy loss to the steamship lines to Singapore and Hongkong. The s. s. Hecate, which should have left yesterday, is not yet discharged; the

. s. Hecuba has been here since Thursday. and to-morrow the s. s. Hydra is expected. We hear that all the prisoners, numbering between thirty and forty, taken during the last riots some four months ago, were released after paying each 3 cattles as a We hope, although we are no friends of capital punishment, that the blood especially of innocent passers by that has been shed on this occasion will not be avenged by mere money payments. We hope at least to see the rattan freely used upon the 600 now captured, as a warning to themselves and other members of the secret

By the latest papers to hand we learn that the riot has now ceased, although some of the mills are under military surveillance. The Bangkok Times says that over 900 prisoners have been captured, among them the The Bingkok Times of 29th ult. says:

Many conflicting reports as to the number of Chinese killed and wounded during the late riots are abroad, and it is exceedinglack of facilities and the reticence of those connected with the wounded persons. It is possible therefore that our rough estimate of the wounded in our last issue-about 100is yet within the mark, for in addition to those attended by others, Dr. T. Havself dressed 50 wounded men, though he saw only 5 killed outright. Three of those seriously hurt are still in the Hospital under
